10.45am SUNDAY NOVEMBER 10th

EVERYONE WELCOME

Borwick Hall

On Monday the 16th of September (my birthday) we went on a whole school trip to Borwick Hall. On the morning of the school trip, we had to arrive at school at 8:15 am to leave school on the bus at 8:30. The journey to Borwick was very long but it was worth it! When we finally arrived, we met our leaders and went of to our first activity.

With our leaders (and Mrs Nash) we walked over to the archery field. During archery we learnt a lot of things including how to hold the bow and how to fire properly and a lot of other tips and tricks. For our second activity we went to the high wall. When we saw the wall, we were all a bit confused but, in my opinion, this was the best activity. The wall was about 3 metres tall and our challenge was to get our whole team onto the platform over the wall which was definitely a challenge and a half but, in the end, we managed to get everyone - even Mrs Nash - over!

When it was lunch, we sat down after doing a lot of activities (even some I have no room to explain about). We had a well needed lunch because we were all so tired. After a while we went to the leap of faith and tree climbing, which were a lot of fun, but for our last activity it was an inside one, we went into the very small caves that were the smallest thing I have ever been in! I had done most of the activities in 2022 but this time it was even more fun. When our day at Borwick was over we were given some cookies and water on the bus to keep us awake before we got home, though most of the infants didn't make it! This was probably one of the best day/birthdays I have ever had.

Borwick Hall

On Monday 16th September our whole school went on a day trip to Borwick Hall.

Activities and bus ride

The drive was very long but once we arrived we got into two groups. First we did Archery, we were split into teams and you needed to get every colour and our team won. Next we climbed up a wall. The aim was to carry everybody over the wall by only using each other, it was very hard but we managed to do it (I don't know how though).

Then we did another teamwork game. Basically you had to place crates on the floor and if you didn't have anybody touching the crate it would be taken away and if you fell off you would have to restart. After ages we did it.

We had lunch after that but you won't want to hear about that so moving on. Next we did tree climbing which had studs nailed into a tree, I climbed to the top of every tree and so did our teacher (Mrs Nash).

After all that, we did the leap of faith (A big red ball hanging in the air) I climbed to the top and touched the woohoo.

Next we went to the caves. I got lost quite a lot of times but after climbing we stopped to get a biscuit and drink and went on the bus home.

What a trip!

Opal Play has been written by Florence

OPAL play

We like opal play because we are free to do anything like go in mud, water, dressing up and doing art. I like opal because even when it is raining we just put are wellies and waterproofs on and we can still go out side and play. In future I would like to toast marshmallows on our fire pit as a cooking lesson.

LETTER FOR NOVEMBER

Dear Friends,

November is perhaps more than any other month a time for remembering. All Souls and All Saints days, and Remembrance Sunday take our minds back in time. In recent times we have been encouraged to focus our minds on the dreadful deeds perpetrated during the years before slavery was abolished. In so doing we have been reminded that many of our heroes of the past had feet of clay. Lord Baden Powell for example was for a while an admirer of Adolf Hitler. He wasn't alone in that regard of course. From the outside looking in, it did indeed seem that Hitler in Germany, and Mussolini in Italy, were doing miraculous things for their respective countries. When the truth became known, all right minded people (including Baden-Powell) swiftly condemned them, and Baden-Powell found himself on the hit list of those Hitler proposed to execute after a successful invasion of our islands.

Slaves weren't of course simply set free in 1833 - they were first purchased by the British government; each one of them had a value put on them according to age, sex, health, skills etc. and the British Government then bought them from their owners for a total sum in today's values of twenty billion pounds. They had to borrow about half of this vast amount and the British taxpayer did not make the final payment on this huge loan until 2015. So most of us in a roundabout way helped to free those wretched people from slavery. ('Gosh I didn't know that' I hear you exclaim.)

Changing one's mind in the light of new information or a change in circumstances used to be a mark of maturity and honesty. These days it seems to be vilified in that derogatory term 'U-turn.' But people should, and must, always be given due credit for changing their minds for the better - John Newton, clergyman and hymn writer was himself at one time the skipper of a slave ship. And many wealthy slave owners subsequently used their vast fortunes to benefit society. Chucking their statues into the sea or defacing them with graffiti, seems to be saying that people can't change for the better and must be forever judged by their misdeeds.

If that is to be so, then what are we Christians to make of perhaps the most significant U-turn in the history of the human race when Saul of Tarsus, that arch persecutor and executioner of Christians, became St Paul and took Christianity to the gentile world. Yet, as you may remember, he returned a runaway slave Onesimus to his owner.

So, slavery, remembrance, heroes who had feet of clay or who were once villains, St Paul and other U-turners; what's that all saying to us? Well as Christians, as we think on these matters, surely they remind us to be slow to judge and quick to forgive - giving due credit to the stray who returns to the fold or who enters it for the first time - and above all, whilst being true to our principles, never letting ignorance of the facts lead us into bigotry or intolerance.

As John Newton wrote in his hymn Amazing Grace, 'I once was lost but now I'm found; was blind but now I see.'

Love and Blessings

TRW SOW AND GROW

in conjunction with the PARISH COUNCIL

Our local volunteers have been busy the last few weeks planting wildflower plugs and bulbs.

Bulb planting on Church Road

We have created 6 new areas in the Parish which now contain a selection of plants including cowslips, English bluebells, fritillaries, red campion, stitch wort, wild garlic to name just a few.

As you may be aware we have decided to change the way we manage this local green space and we are now cutting less frequently. By leaving grass and wildflowers in areas to grow long we are:

- increasing habitat for beneficial insects and wildlife
- promoting sustainable landscapes that are bigger, better and joined-up
- encouraging native wildflowers to flourish and grow
- saving energy and reducing emissions by not using mowers and equipment
- providing an opportunity for observation and education about local wildlife and plants
- creating a beautiful area for the whole community to enjoy!

A big thank you to anyone who has helped in any way and to those people who have cooperated and supported our endeavours by not mowing the grass at certain times of year.

Without your support we could not have created the new areas .

Since last November we have planted: 80,000 bulbs and 3,400 wildflowers

We have applied for and been successful in obtaining grants to help pay for the purchase of the bulbs and flowers.

THANK YOU ONCE AGAIN TO EVERYONE WHO HAS HELPED

We are hoping to photograph and document the flowers which grow in the parish which we hope to put a link on the PC website. If you are able to help with the document and or photographs please contact:

THANK YOUs

Harvest

A very big THANK YOU to all who contributed food, flowers and food bank donations to make our recent Harvest Service a great success. Donations raised £400.50 for church funds.

Donations were also received for the Bishop's Harvest Appeal.

Thank you from Kathy T

Kathy says 'Thank you to Treales WI, Wesham and Treales Mother's Union, and the people of Treales, Wharles & Roseacre for all flowers, gifts and best wishes received during my illness.'
